Like clouds they send screen the ice, His hand noids here as in a vice; The moonlight strikes the back blown hair Of-handsome Madge and Rupert Clare.

The ice reasunds beneath the steel; It greens to feel his gourning heel; White ever with the following wind A shadowy skater fills behind. "Why akste we thue so far from land? Oh! Empert Clare, let go my hand! I can not see. I can not hear." The wind about us mosts with feat!"

His hand is stiffer than a vice, His touch is colder than the loc, His face is paier than the moon That pares with light the lone lagoon!

"Oh! Rupers Clare, I feel—I trace A something awful in your face! Kon creek my hand—you sweep me on— Until my breath said sches are gone!"

the only hears the ringing tune If skates upon the lone lagoon. "Ch. Bupert Clare! sweet Bupert Clare! For Bearen's mercy, heer my prayer! I could not help my heart, you know— Poor Willy Gray—heloves ma so!"

His grip is stiffer than a vice, His lip is blast than the ice; While ever thrills the ringing tune Of skates along the lone lapoon, "Gh, Eupert Clare! where are your spea! The rolles for better us lies! You dear and! Loose your held, I say !— 0, God! Where are you, Willy God!

A shrick that seems to split the sky-A wilder light in Rupert's eye-She can not-can not loss that grip; His sinewy arm is round her hip?

But like an arrow on the wind The ahadowy skater scude behind; The lithe ice rises to the atroke Of stoel-shed hoels that seem to smoke. He hurls himself upon the pair— He team his bride from Eupert Clare-His fainting Madge, whose moist eyes Ah! here, at last, is Willy Gray!

The lowers stand with heart to heart "No more, they cry, "no more to part!" But still along the lone lagoon. The steel shates ring a ghostly tune! And in the moonlight, pale and cold, The panting lovers still behold The self appointed sacridee Shating toward the rotten ice!

Rare Love-Marriage in Parls-The Misfortune of Wedlock and a Melaucholy Tragedy.

Ten years ago, says the Paris correspondent of the New Orleans Picayana, there was at the Madeleine one of those rare sights in Paris, a marriage for love. People here Paris, a marriage for love. People here matry for a great many reasons—rarely for love, which passes in society as no reason at all. The bridegroom was a "spendid looking fellow," and he was agreeable, graceful, and possessed elegant manners. The bride was a beautiful gir, and agreeable and graceful as her husband; but the malicious said, she was haughty and reserved. Their fortures were equal, and logether formed a considerable sum of money. All went happily the first twelve months of marriage. In love matches the first twelve months are always the first twelve months of marriage. In love matches the first twelve months are always easy. It is different in interested marriages, where the first year is the longest and most painful and dreariest of life, for custom makes the yoke easier every day. In love matches the disappointment which succeeds the first glow of passion makes the chain a heavier burden daily.

The dashing fellow proved to be fond of expense. He lavished money with an unreckoning hand. The income not only went, but a bit of the capital was chipped off when all the bills were paid. His wife continued to love him with unabated affection. She tenderly called his attention to the disastrous consequences of the inequality which existed between their expenditures and their income, and conjured him by their children (if it so and conjured him by their children (if it so plessed Heaven to endow them) to restore the proper equilibrium. He was vain, and revolted from the humiliating confession to the world that his income failed under his style of living.

It is inconceivable to a sober head what It is inconceivable to a sober head what phentoms haunt men, menacing them with contempt or promising them respect if they desert, or if they persevere in a line of conduct the world, nay, even their nearest friends do not know they are in or ever were in. Our neighbors pay much less attention to us than our self-love will let us believe, and my avariance of the world (it is true.) and my experience of the world (it is true it is confined), has convinced me that, prorided one does not borrow money from his wided one does not be in to indorse paper, one may order his life just as he pleases, adopting either a bread and water diet or a regimen of truffles, game and vieux ceps.

The vanity of the husband made him deaf to his wife's suggestions (she forbore out of respect for her husband giving them any other form); consequently their absolute ruin iscame a mere question of time. Their ruin was accelerated by the illicit connec-tions the busherd formed—I had almost said maturally formed, for there is a fever attend-ing inordicate expense of money which seeks a momentary forgetfulness in syrens' botoms. The wife bore this neglect with the same outward composure with which she saw their estates waste away, but it wounded her to the heart and drew many a secret tear from her. Hating his wife with that unpardoning virulence of hatred, for-hearance and kindness and affection not unfrequently raise in the undeserving objects of it, he applied for a separation from bed and board with his wife. She made no re-

The divorce was granted. It rescued ber dowry from certain waste. As she had made no effect to save it, thinking as honorable womes have a ways, and will always think, that man and wife are one and should have one destiny, one estate, one honor, she de-voted her fortune to preserve her husband's name from sully. So wild was the course he ran, that he exhausted her estate. He did not know she had aided him, and hed melted the money lenders long after they else had proved relentless. After her estate went away also became a governess in some for-eign family, and quitted France. Her bus-hand was absolutely ruined, and in the debtors' jail, ignorant and careless what had become of her, when an uncle in the pro-vinces left him a considerable chtate.

This godsend melted his obdurate heart This godsend melted his obdurate heart and he determined to lead a new life. The first thing he did was to seek his wife. He heard her history, which you know. He instantly wrote her, begging her pardon for the past, informing her of his inheritance, and saking permission to join her, and live as he should live by her side. You may imagine her reply! The day after it reached Paris a telegraphic dispatch was agent her. aris, a telegraphic dispatch was sent her, idding her to hasten to Paris: her husband had been taken with the typhus fever, which has been and is so prevalent here, and daily became worse. She came as fast as steam could bring her-swift as it 'twas, too slow-when she entered the railway station here she was told he had departed this life, and she was denied even the melancholy satis-fection of embracing for a last time his ley, inanimate form inanimate form.

So many storms—such a glimpse of bright sunshine—succeeded by so thick a cloud, were more than the poor woman could hear.

A languor invaded her body, and at last took complete possession of her. She was buried last week. Now, side by side, they lie in the graveyard who, ten brief years ago, stood side by side attired in bridal costs me b fore the aitar of the Madeleine Church—a fitful fever those ten years were! Grave, deny them not thy wonted peace!

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL

In certain quarters, Money was in more demand yesterday than on Thursday, but in others there was little change; the applications for loans at the Discourt-houses continuing in excess of the means to meet them and the checking being about equal to the receipts. Some of the large Deposit-houses reported heavy calls for Currency, but generally the supply was pretty firm, and last evening the aggregate amount on hand was about the same as it was in the morning. Undoubted Paper was still selling in the street at 24@80 per cent. per annum; and holders were quite willing to acept those exorbitant figures.

Boston and New York Exchange was in regular and with most dealers heavy, some quoting the market at 1/2 and others at 1/2 prem. As several large houses were drawing freely at 1/2, that must be regarded as the rate, for, of course, no one could sell his drafts 1/2 higher than the price for which it could be regularly obtained. On collections, in many instances, 37 was no doubt charged, but it could not be had of buyers to any extent. Baltimore and Philadelphia Exchange varied as to price, but they were firmer than on Thursday. No dealer to-day will, we presume, pretend to ask over 1/2 for Exhange on any point. New Orleans Exchange was firm enough, though not much was doing at par to 1/4 and 3/4 prem., and Coin was stiff at 14@14 and 14@1 prem., buying and selling rates.

The Western Banks on the uncurrent list improved, and Missouri, Iowa, Illinois and Wisconsin Notes were sold at 6 discount, Wheeling City (Va.) Notes went at 5 and the Branches at 6 discount. The Bloomington Bank of Indiana is now purchased at 20@25 discount, but the Fayette County Bank of that State, having ceased to redeem its issues, they can not be disposed of better than 40@50 discount.

As nearly as we can, we append the rates of Exchange and Gold at the close of Bank hours yesterday:

was in fair request, and 14c. per gallon higher. A liberal inquiry was had for Gro-ceries, which were firm. Wheat, Cora and Rve were stendy and in demand, and Oats and Barley were dull. Provisions continued buoyant, mess Pork advancing to $16 75, and at the close good city brands could not be purchased below $17. Bulk Pork advanced to 61/4 and 81/4c. loose, and 81/c. for Sides packed. Bacon was firm, and Lard was in demand at 91/c., but prime city was held 1/2c. higher, the market closing buoyant.

The receipts of Hogs were quite light and prices went up at least 10c., the market closing with decided firmness. The sales reached 2,400 head, at $6 30@6 50. Yesterday's Louisville Journal observes:

The Money market continues very stringent. There is no change to note in the rates for Exchange, and we quote Eastern at % per cent. premium, and New Orleans at %@l per cent. premium, and in good supply. There is no variation in Currency. The Provision market is active, with a con-%@l per cent. premium, and in good sup-prly. There is no variation in Currency. The Provision market is active, with a con-siderable demand for bulk Meats at full prices. Messrs. Stewart & Barter report sales of 370 bris. mess Pork at $17, 75,000 pounds bulk clear Sides at 9c; 10,000 do. Shoulders at 6½c; 5,000 pieces Shoulders at the same; 1,200 pieces Shoulders—packed—at 6½c; 12,000 pounds sume at 6½c; 13 cases clear Bacon Sides at 11c; 7 casks Bacon Shoulders at 7½c; and 50 tierces Falls City Hams at 11½c. Hams at 11%c.

Thursday's New York papers say of Wednesday's Stock Market :

The Stock market continues firm buoyant, though there is not much outside business. There are no Stocks in the street, and there is a lively inquiry for Stocks from parties who have sold short on the political crisis. Itiinois Central, which has been freely sold, advanced this morning to 83½, and this afternoon to 85½; it sold three days ago at 76. Reading also advanced, and the general Western railroad list was higher. Tennessee Sixes fell off-a fraction, and Eric was also tailer lower. In the afternoon a very large business was done, and prices were uniformly higher than in the morning. The 12 per cent. Treasury notes fluctuate between 214 and 234 premium. At the close to-day the market was firm. Thursday's Times remarks respecting Wednesday Money matters in New York:

The advices from England of a change of rate for Money at the Bank of England to 6 per cent, failed to affect our own market for ter cent, failed to affect our own market for Exchange or Money to-day. The news was not received until after the mail for the Cunarder was made up, but we do not find that the Bankers are disposed to advance their Bills on London above 106 per cent. for Saturday's steamer. The Bremen, from Southampton, brought $380,000 in Gold, The Discount rates outside of Bank are nearly down to Bank on strictly first-class, double-name Paper, 763 per cent. being the current quotation, with a demand at 7 per cent. for prime Sixty-day Acceptances. At call, Money is loaned at 667 per cent. on approved Collateral, with only a moderate demand from the Stock Brokers, among whom most of the speculative Stocks are really scarcer on the street than the Money needed to carry them. Some further sales really scarcer on the street than the aloney needed to carry them. Some further sales of the new 12 per cent. Treasury Bills were made to-day at 102 per cent, and we find that the impression gains ground that at least a good portion of the bids for the $5,000,000 to be awarded on Saturday will be at a lower rate of interest than 12 per Boston Checks are quoted in New York 1/4; Philadelphia %; Battimore 1; Cincinnati, and New Orleans 11/2 discount.

NEW YORK CATTLE MARKET—Thursday, January 17.—The Cattle for this week's market came in very scattering, and produced some derangement in the sales. They should all be here on Tuesday morning at latest, as the first market day is usually the best. Only 2,000 head were here to begin with, the remaining I,200 coming in at intervals up to nearly noon of Wednesday. Probably the first arrivals sold better on this account.

At least the market was quite lively at its opening, especially while any good Cattle were to be had. Trade was rather dull yesterday, medium and common Cattle selling about $3 per head lower than the day before. about $3 per head lower than the day before. Quite a loss was sustained upon lots coming in late, as first-class buyers had supplied themselves. The prevailing rates for good butchers' steers were 9%@loc.—a few head of premium animals brought i1@12c. There was a wide range in prices, the "scallawag" class solling at less than 7c. The general quality of the Cattle was not good. All were finally disposed of. Sheep are plenty, and 50c. per head cheaper. Hogs are selling as first as they arrive, at an advance of near 1/2c per pound.
